

CUNNINGHAM VICTOR WITHOUT QUESTION

BELOIT MAN HAS 136 PLURALITY IN STATE SENATE RACE, ACCORDING TO CANVASS.

SECOND CHOICE GAINS

Majority of Gettle Second Choice Votes Swing to Cunningham in Both Counties—Other Results.

Canvass of the primary election vote in Rock and Walworth counties on the returns for state senator on the republican ticket, indicate that L. E. Cunningham, present mayor of Beloit, has a plurality of 136 first choice votes over L. C. Whitteit of Edgerton who is second man in the race.

Cunningham's total first choice vote in the two counties was 2,198, of which 1,316 were from Rock county and 882 from Walworth. Whitteit's total vote in the two counties was 2,062—1,187 from Rock, and 875 from Walworth.

The second choice vote had not been canvassed in Walworth county early this afternoon, but complete figures were received from the Rock county canvassers showing that in this county Cunningham will receive 134 second choice votes from Lewis E. Gettle, the third man in the race who will be eliminated under the new law, and Whitteit will receive 70 from Gettle, thus increasing Cunningham's margin of winning.

According to Grant Harrington, Walworth county clerk, the second choice vote was large in that district and it may play an important part. Gettle's total first choice in Walworth county was only 438, however.

The Rock county vote, as canvassed, stood as follows:

L. E. Cunningham, 1,316 first choice on the ballots of Gettle he received 134 second choice and on the ballots of Whitteit 60.

L. C. Gettle, 936 first choice; from Cunningham 140 second choice, from Whitteit 50 second choice.

L. C. Whitteit, 1,187 first choice, from Gettle 70 second choice, and from Cunningham 60 second choice.

As Gettle is the low man only the second choice votes cast by his supporters will count in the final result.

Word from Elkhorn this afternoon after the second choice had been canvassed showed the following result: Cunningham will receive 77 of the Gettle second choice votes against Whitteit's 30. When the total is finally struck between the two counties Cunningham's vote will be 2,415 and Whitteit's 2,162. Cunningham's majority, 253.

Assembly Districts.

Canvass of the vote for assemblyman in both the districts confirm the margin of victory for Rosa in the second and Richardson in the first. Results are as follows:

First district: D. Willard North, 521; from Richardson 39, and from Kennedy 19 second choice; M. P. Richardson, 626, from North 29, and Kennedy 30 second choice; L. E. Kennedy, 292, and from Richardson 39 and North 16 second choice.

Second district: Simon G. Strong, 494, and from Smith 21, and from Rosa 33 second choice; Rosa 387, and from Strong 74, and Smith 99 second choice; Simon Smith 478, and from Strong 61, and from Rosa 81 second choice.

County Ticket.

In the democratic county ticket the canvass shows the following results: Fred B. Sherman for county clerk 639; Clark Palmer, treasurer, 647; E. H. Connell, sheriff, 638; David T. Boner, clerk of court, 599; Robert M. Richmond, district attorney, 628; Frank Hynes, register of deeds, 602; Robt. Caldwell, surveyor, 611.

Republican State Ticket.

In the republican state ticket McGovern's vote was 2,587. In the contest for state treasurer the county vote stood, 1,381 for Johnson and 654 for Krumrey; for attorney general Lehner, 1,155 and Owen 1,148.

Rio Janeiro, Sept. 7.—The Madeira-Mamore railway, which extends from the coast hundreds of miles into the Brazilian jungle and the completion of which is considered almost as remarkable a piece of engineering as the building of the Panama canal, was formally opened today with ceremonies in which the representatives of many nations had part. Prominent among the honored guests of the occasion was Dr. Albert Hale of Washington, D. C., the official representative of the Pan-American Union.

The new railway opens up an immense area of valuable farming country, but its chief end, from the viewpoint of Brazilian capitalists, is that it penetrates one of the greatest wild rubber areas in the world.

MEXICAN CONGRESS WILL SOON CONVENE

Progressive Party, Headed By Madero, In Control—Expect To Carry Out Many Reforms.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Mexico City, Sept. 7.—The new Mexican Congress convenes September 16, and after that date it will be difficult for friends of the administration to find excuses for failure to carry out at least a few of the promises made by President Madero when he was chief of the rebel army that overthrew the Diaz government.

The Chamber of Deputies will have on its roll 243 representatives, 150 of whom were elected by the Constitutional Progressive party, which gave Madero the presidency. The minority of 93 is by no means a solid block. It includes representatives of three political parties, the Catholics, Evolutionist and Independent.

The Progressives also claim to have the balance of power in the senate. The upper house in Mexico is not the dominant body, however, and undisputed control in the chamber amounts practically to control of congress.

Of the weird medley or revolutionary propaganda which reached the capital from the camps of Orozco in the north, from those of Zapata in the south and from the "raids of rebellious peons in districts so remote that the names of Zapata and Orozco are rarely heard, the most dominant note is that in which all unite—"Madero must resign." For the most part the rebels have vague reasons for uniting in this demand and all resort to the charge that the president has failed to fulfill the promises made in his "Plan of San Luis Potosi."

The charge is not without basis, but the very natural defense of the president is and has been that he has had neither time nor the legal machinery necessary for the carrying out of the promised reforms. Not for one day since his inauguration has his country been free from rebels who loudly demanded "fulfillment of his promises," and not yet has the executive had a congress on which he could depend for the support of the measures he has promised.

The congress Madero inherited was a part of the old administration. The new congress is supposed to be in sympathy with his ideas. Under the old congress, however, the administration was able to have enacted the most cherished reform—the constitutional amendment providing for the re-election of the president. The electoral law was also altered, but the elections of the past summer betrayed so many defects in the new law that it will come up again for revision in this session. One of the defects most glaring, it was found, was that it permitted a man to be a candidate for an indefinite number of offices at the same time. For instance, Francisco de la Barra, former provisional president who was made a member of the senate on the Catholic ticket, was a candidate in four different states.

Among those measures known to be ready for presentation at the session beginning in September are an employer's liability act, the abolition of the jefes politicos, an anti-peonage law and a measure for establishing courts of jurisdiction for the settlement of land titles in cases where the records are missing. It may be that during the past revolution and in those revolutions yet existing.

Another dramatic chapter was added to the story of the massacre of soldiers and citizens at Tlaxiama by Zapatistas by Gerald Brandon, an American newspaper man working on El Diario of this city. Two of the passengers on the train assaulted by the Zapatistas were H. L. Strauss and John D. Rockefeller. Mexican correspondents. Another was Miguel Rivera, a newspaper photographer. All were slain, and their bodies, with those of the other victims, burned. Brandon visited the long heap of human ashes a few days later, and there, according to a story written in the first person, which he sent to his paper, "swore to forsake his attitude of neutrality and to avenge the death of his companions."

The remainder of the story was brought here by the officer in command of the detachment with which Brandon was riding. From this officer Brandon asked a rifle and cartridges. The next day the little force of federals had a brush with the rebels. Brandon was firing from the ground near the officer. "There's one for Strauss," said Brandon to the officer, pointing to a fallen rebel. A few minutes later another rebel crumpled down, and Brandon, turning to the officer, added: "That was for Igracio; now one more for Miguel." Again a rebel pitched forward, and Brandon, sliding over to the officer, handed him the rifle and cartridge belt with the remark that he had done his part in making the score even.

COLONEL ROOSEVELT VISITS HOME STATE OF SENATOR DIXON

Bull Moose Chief Invades Montana and Discourses on Kingship, Standard Oil and Sundry Topics.

Hathaway, Mont., Sept. 7.—After an all night's ride from Fargo, N. D., Colonel Roosevelt came into Senator Dixon's state today. He was to speak at Billings, Livingston, Bozeman, Logan and Helena and then have the first night's rest from his train which his campaign managers have permitted since a left Oyster Bay. He will remain over night in Helena leaving Sunday morning for Spokane.

In a brief speech before a crowd of men and women who had risen an hour or two before usual time to hear him, Colonel said that his opponents had made every claim against him they could think of including that he wanted to be king.

Colonel on Kingship.

"I am accused of wanting to rule this country with an iron hand," he said. "I always feel inclined to answer that the people who make this statement do not know kings or they would not put it down as my ambition to become one. They don't know kings as I do. Other things I might like to do, but not that. The continual monarch of the present time comes nearer being a cross between a perpetual vice president and a leader of our four hundred than anything I know of."

"Mind you," he continued, "I am not saying anything against the job of king, but I just would not have it."

Old Parties Fooling.

The colonel then discussed the anti-trust law by the Taft administration and the attitude of the progressive party toward corporations.

"The two old parties are fooling about the trusts," he said. "Take the case of the Standard Oil Company for instance. The country has come to find out that instead of the government's action being the death of Standard Oil, it was only a make believe death. I cite the Standard Oil case to you as an instance of scrambling that effected anything but the swiftest and most complete eggs. Our purpose is to not unscramble the eggs, but to exercise such control that will prevent any scrambling."

PASTOR BURNED TO DEATH UNDER CAR

Germantown, Ia., Minister Incinerated When Automobile, Under Which He Was Pinned, Caught Fire.

Paulina, Iowa, Sept. 7.—Murmuring a prayer, but uttering no cry of pain, Rev. H. Greife, pastor of the Lutheran church in Germantown, Iowa, was burned to death under the wreck of a motor car six miles from this place late last night. News of the tragedy reached here early today.

Together with August Pauling of Germantown, who was driving the car, and the children of both men, the clergyman was in his way to Paulina when the steering gear of the auto became disarranged and the car ran off a small bridge over a culvert upside down.

Pauling and the children jumped to safety. The minister was pinned beneath the heavy car. Attracted by the cries of the children for help several persons living in the vicinity of the accident hurried to the rescue. One of these carried a lantern. Gasoline from the tank had run over the wrecked car. The man with the lantern accidentally dropped it and in a moment the auto was a mass of flames. The rescuers made frantic efforts to extricate Mr. Greife, but were driven back by the heat. Several men were burned while endeavoring to raise the overturned car. Meanwhile the clergyman's children stood by watching their parent being incinerated.

HAYES URGES THAT HE UPHELD ORDERS OF MAYOR GAYNOR

Deposed Police Inspector in New York Graff Case Gives Some Interesting Testimony.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Sept. 7.—Cornelius C. Hayes, deposed police inspector on trial charged with making false statements reflecting on Commissioner Waldo, intimated on the witness stand today that the official stenographic report of his conversation with Waldo wherein the alleged false statements were made, had been tampered with. "I don't believe I said any such thing," he declared. "I don't believe the record is correct."

Hayes admitted he had made several raids where there was no disorder apparent on the outside. "Why did you do this?" he was asked. "I had received complaint from citizens."

A letter from Commissioner Waldo to Hayes, the latter said embodying Mayor Gaynor's direction that policemen should discontinue the old methods of getting evidence against disorderly houses from the inside of such houses, put a stop to the practice. In the cases previously cited Hayes declared he had disregarded Mayor Gaynor's order.

The letter was placed in evidence. It embodies a declaration imputed to Mayor Gaynor that the passing of men in and from houses harboring women should be taken as evidence that the houses were disorderly. This Hayes said helped support his contention that in refraining from raiding houses where there was no such evidence he was upholding Mayor Gaynor's policy.

An ordeal of cross examination was ahead of Cornelius C. Hayes, the deposed police inspector, when he reported at headquarters for the second day of his trial on the charge of making false statements regarding Police Commissioner Waldo. Hayes was on the stand when adjournment was taken yesterday. He made a good witness under direct examination flatly contradicting the testimony of Police Commissioner Waldo, who had proceeded him on the stand. He insisted that Waldo had given him orders not to molest any disorderly houses which were making "An outward show of decency."

THRILLING RACES BY BEST AVIATORS AT CHICAGO MEET

Third International Aviation Meet for America Promises Numerous Spectacular Events.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Sept. 7.—America's third international aviation meet, which opens Monday will establish a new mark for America in the number of aviators of international fame entered. Chief of these are the pilots of the foreign and American racers who compete in the Gordon Bennett world's championship aeroplane race, the first event of the meet.

The meeting embraces daily monoplane and biplane handicap races, a scratch biplane and monoplane race which is designed to give further demonstration of the skill of the Gordon Bennett drivers, and a 40 kilometer race for all types, handicapped. Other contests are bomb and mail throwing, accuracy landing contests from heights of 1,000 feet without a motor and similar events in which skill of the operator is tested.

This is the fourth time aeroplanes have been matched for world's championship, as typified by the $10,000 silver trophy given by James Gordon Bennett in 1908 to be contested for annually by licensed pilots of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale.

American Victories

Twice before a single American entrant has driven his aeroplane ahead of his competitors and brought the silver trophy to America. Glenn H. Curtiss was the first winner, at Rheims, France, Aug. 23, 1909. His biplane finished the 12.4 mile race in 15 seconds, or five seconds ahead of the looked-for winner, Louis Bleriot of France. There were five starters but only four of the flyers were able to cover the distance, which then was considered an almost impossible journey for an aeroplane.

In New York, on the Belmont Park aerodrome, the second contest was held. The course had been lengthened to 100 kilometers (62.4 miles) and Claude Grahame White, England's best known aviator, won in 71 minutes four seconds, his first 100-kilometer flight. The first 100-kilometer flight was made by a biplane built by Alfred Lablanc of France led in the race in a similar machine, up to the last lap of the field, when he ran out of gasoline and in landing, crashed into a telegraph pole and smashed his aeroplane.

Graham White's victory took the trophy to England, where it was contested for in 1911 on the Isle of Sheppey at Eastchurch, July 1. Charles Terres Weymann, sole American entrant again, went up in a 100 horsepower Nieuport monoplane and captured the trophy. His time for the 160 kilometers was 51 minutes 36 seconds, a speed of 78 miles an hour; then a world's record. Lablanc again after the world championship, had to content himself with second, being two minutes slower than Weymann.

Speed Only Factor

Speed alone determines the winner there being no restriction on the construction of the aeroplanes. Because of the high speeds attained, few aviators have cared to enter, and in the three events held previously, a total of thirteen entrants only on the lists.

This year the race has been lengthened to 200 kilometers (124 miles), and the course was laid out on an ellipse of 4.14 miles, requiring thirty laps to complete the race. In the French elimination trials Jules Vedrines made a speed of 106 miles an hour which established expectation as to what speed would be made by the choice machines of the six nations competing—America, England, France, Holland, Belgium and Switzerland.

France designated Jules Vedrines and Maurice Prevost, pilots of Deperdussin monoplanes, and Andre Frey, who drives an Hanriot monoplane, as its representatives. England had named Claude Grahame White, Gustave Hamel and George Doyot, but it was not certain until the last minute just who would make the actual flights.

First Aircraft Contests

Belgium's first typhoid fever a few days before the race, and Jan Wynnen, who was to represent Holland, was so disappointed in the showing of his Oertz monoplane he withdrew. Edmund Audemars, Switzerland's representative, was not certain of the choice of pilot will not be definitely settled until the day before the race. An American defender prepared to carry a 160 horsepower motor, the largest aero motor ever designed.

The hydroaeroplane, of airboat, aviation contests are the first ever held, outside of the military competitions held in France for selection of government machines. The contests must continue five days during which races and contests are evolved to demonstrate how the multi-use machine may be guided on the water, be raised into the air and flown as a flying boat.

In addition efficiency prizes have been offered, the contest being the number of passengers carried, the length of time one two and three extra passengers may remain aloft, and other similar competitions.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. TAIT RETURN TO SUMMER HOME

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 7.—President and Mrs. Taft, having left the yacht Mayflower shortly after 11 a. m. today at West Beach near Beverly, Chairman Charles D. Hilles and treasurer George R. Sheldon, of the republican national committee and a party of Mrs. Taft's friends accompanied them. The party was driven to Parramatta, the Taft cottage. The president's lame ankle seems better and he apparently suffers little pain. He hopes to be able to resume playing golf next week.

TO DISPATCH MORE TROOPS TO MEXICO

It is true that Harry Davis, former manager of the Cleveland Naps, made many mistakes, and it was because of these that he was deposed. However, Davis was a victim of bad luck. He had a poor bunch to start in with last spring. His pitching staff was weak and his catchers were woefully unequal to their task. But he had no first-class third baseman. At short both Olson and Peckinbaugh fell shy of expectations.

As the season progressed his hard luck continued. Lajoie was injured and out of the game for several weeks. Gene Krapp, from whom much was expected in the pitching line, blew up. Injuries, sickness and other causes forced innumerable changes in the lineup. Under such circumstances it is doubtful if any manager, no matter how skillful or resourceful, could have made much of an impression.

Tennis enthusiasts look with wonder upon the rapid rise of Maurice McLaughlin, who at twenty-two is tennis champion of the United States. Outside of Norman Brooks, the great Australian champion, McLaughlin is touted as the most brilliant player on the courts today. His wonderful capacity for being able to concentrate his whole mental and physical self at crucial points in the game and gather an almost hopeless match from the possession of his antagonist, is the supreme touch of genius in a game, where genius is of paramount importance.

University of Illinois rooters are happy because of the fact that the annual Illinois-Chicago football game will not be played until November this year. In the history of football

Illinois has beaten the Midway institution in but one game. Illinois followers declare the reason for this is that it's impossible to develop men in the warm fall weather of October.

"I regard smoking in a game of golf as decidedly harmful to a man's form and a bad practice," recently declared Tom Sherman, son of the vice president and an expert golf player. "It is much the same as in pool or billiards—you know a good pool or billiard player will never smoke during play. Putting is a pretty exact operation, fully as hard as a pool shot, and a little smoke in a man's eye will cost him a stroke and a hole in no time."

Larry McLean, Cincinnati Reds' catcher, and Charles Schmidt, catcher of the Providence R. I. team, are very versatile young men. They are not only baseball players—they're boxers, too, and during the world's series they may have a bout in Boston. McLean has received letters from the Hub showing that boxing clubs of that city are anxious to get the attraction. Schmidt is the man who claims to have whipped Ty Cobb several times in club quarrels.

Armando Marsans and Bob Bescher of the Cincinnati Reds are going a great race in base running. Those two boys now lead the National league in stealing. Bob first and Armando right at his heels. The Cuban is running like wildfire and is hitting the ball hard. Bescher's base running is just about perfect. He is a great base runner, not only on account of his excessive speed, but because he takes every reasonable chance without running into foolish plays and has the enemy in the air all the time he is on.

BELOIT CLUB HOST TO LOCAL GOLFERS

Janesville Players Defeated By Nardow Margin In Crack Team Of Sixteen Beloit Men.

The Mississippi Golf Club was loyally entertained by the Beloit Club yesterday afternoon. Sixteen members of the home team, composed of some of the best and some of the most indifferent players met defeat by a narrow margin at the hands of the best players that Beloit could produce.

The game was called at two o'clock and at 3:30 the last team lead off at No. 1, and the game was on. The grounds were rough compared to the home grounds, but the lay of the course is fine, and only time and plenty of hard work is necessary to make it perfect.

The club house which stands on the bluff overlooking the river, three miles this side of Beloit, is a model in many ways and a favorite resort for the good people of the city.

Friday is Club Day and at 6:30 a substantial dinner was served and one hundred and fifty people, the Janesville men being the guests of honor and occupying a table where coats were barred.

The Roy Carter Orchestra furnished the music for the dance which followed, and which was in full swing when the Janesville men started for home. Beloit and Janesville golfers should get together often.

Following is the score of yesterday's game, the Nassau System being used:

On Tuesday F. C. Grant and Edward C. Haumann will play the final of the Wilson Lane cup. Scores for the qualifying round for the Morgan trophy must be handed in before Tuesday.

Wheaton, Ill., Sept. 7.—Charles Evans Jr., of Edgewater, led Jerome Travers of Upper Montclair, by one hole at the end of the morning round of eighteen holes in the finals for the National Amateur Golf Championship today. Both men were playing par golf or better on nearly every hole. Evans had somewhat the better of the drive and Travers was slightly off on approaching.

REAL ABILITY WINS OVER MERE BEAUTY

Thousands of Women Testify That Beauty Is Only "Selling Plaster" in Life's Race.

Many suffragette stenographers have given their testimony this week to the closing of beauty to ability. Ability is The Gazette's choice, picked to win and played against any odds in the race of life.

Beauty runs only as a close second according to the story which all pretty stenographers who have set the heads of the dictionary distributors whirling by their charming beauty, said this week.

The girls are getting the book that will make errors in their office work only the result of rank neglect to profit from an ever-present help.

"We don't want your pity—we want work," is the slogan of the suffragette stenographers, who declare that they wish to make ability such a necessity to employment that the low wage and the frequent reprimand will soon become relics of a forgotten past and "woman" will occupy the same position as "man" in the business world.

If you believe in woman's suffrage, help to place her in the same class as her male associates in business.

If you are a woman do not depend upon your beauty to protect you from reprimand. Win respect and admiration by your ability.

Every workingwoman, every suffragette should secure the error eliminator known as the New Websterian Dictionary, Illustrated.

The last week has been a greater success than was anticipated. Hundreds of men and women have been brought to realize that their ignorance of English is their real bar to success, and that the use of the handy helper of The Gazette's dictionary is the real means to overcome the shortcoming.

This dictionary is NOT published by the original publishers of Webster's Dictionary or by their successors.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH STATE CONFERENCE HELD AT FOOTVILLE

Election of Official State Board of Church Was Held This Morning—Sessions Close Tomorrow.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Footville, Sept. 7.—At the session of the fortieth annual conference of the Christian church of Wisconsin, here this morning, the official state board for the ensuing year was elected as follows: F. L. Van Boerhis of Green Bay; John H. Fisher of Janesville; R. Nourse, Milwaukee; J. Klupp, Milwaukee; P. W. Snyder, Footville; Frank Dean, Ladysmith; Dr. James Ferebee, Richland Center.

The first session of the conference was held Thursday evening. The invocation was given by Rev. F. M. Ambrose, pastor of the local church, and addresses were given by R. E. Stevens of Richland Center and W. B. Kramer of Rockford, Ill.

At the business session, Friday morning, the report of the secretary,

F. L. Van Boerhis of Green Bay, was received. The condition of the church during the past year was found most flourishing. Three new churches have been established in the state and all others report an increased number of accessions.

An address by Rev. Mark Wayne Williams, pastor of the Second church, Milwaukee, on the subject, "The Grace of Preaching," closed the session Friday morning.

Yesterday afternoon there was a meeting of the Christian Women's Missionary board and various reports were presented which showed the society had done a large amount of work. Two new societies have been organized.

At the meeting last evening, Rev. C. C. Smith of Cincinnati, Ohio, talked on "Work Among the Negroes," and W. J. Muckley of Kansas City, Mo., secretary of the church extension work, told of the assistance given societies that are building churches. Twenty-five hundred churches have been aided during the year.

F. T. Rhoades of Waupun and S. J. Homan of Milwaukee and J. A. Grace of Soldiers Grove spoke at the session this morning. Tomorrow will be the closing day of the convention.

Over seventy-five delegates from all sections of the state have been in attendance throughout the week and have been entertained in a delightful manner by the members of the local church. Meals for the visitors have been furnished by the ladies of the church and have been served in the church dining room.

Rather Neat Rejoinder.
A Frenchman, dining at the duke of Richmond's, bored the company by boasting that his country was first in everything; and supreme in fashions. Ruffles were then in vogue, and monsieur claimed that France deserved the credit for introducing them. "That is true," said George Selwyn, "but England improved them greatly by adding a shirt to them."

Cherish Noble Traditions.
If we have noble traditions, these are the days when the national need demands that we should live as close to them as possible.

Keeping Friends.
Not to need your friends is probably the best way to keep them.—Aldrich Globe.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.
"Do you think a man is ever too old to learn?"
"I'm sure he isn't. For example, when I graduated from college my father did not know anywhere near as much as I did, but during the years that I have been knocking around since then he seems to have quite caught up with me."

It is an old saying that "the boy at twenty knows it all," but the discovery made by the man in middle life, is a common experience, and so the fact was long since established that education goes on to the edge of time.
It is fortunate for the masses that in the great university of life there are no favorites, because the great rank and file of humanity enter its portals with a limited knowledge of text books. While this may be a handicap, in many cases, it does not prevent an army of people from acquiring a well-rounded, practical education which serves them well in the various callings where their lot is cast.

The school system is blamed for some things for which it is not responsible, and the reason why so few pupils, comparatively, fail to enter and graduate from the high school is not so much the fault of the system, as it is of some other causes, which are frequently overlooked.

For instance, we pass laws on compulsory education, fix the school age at sixteen, and appoint truant officers to round up the delinquents and see that the laws are enforced.

The intent of these laws is good, and doubtless keeps many children in school, but the average parent long since discovered that compulsion is a poor method to adopt with boys especially at the age of 14 and 15, and experience demonstrates that in the larger cities, and in many of the towns as well, a small army of boys become expert street loafers before they reach the age where the law permits them to work.

The statement may seem a little startling, but it is nevertheless true, that many boys and girls lack the mental capacity, as well as the disposition to acquire a text book knowledge.

This does not mean that they are mentally weak, or that they will not succeed in acquiring and applying practical knowledge in the great university, which they are soon to enter, but it does mean that the same principle applies to the child as to the horse who can be led to the trough, but not made to drink.

The State School for the Blind is an object lesson on the failure of compulsory education. The pupils are enrolled at school age and for a dozen years or more, are in constant attendance.

The course of study is the same as that of the common and high schools of the state, and good teachers are always provided, and yet but 20 per cent of these pupils ever graduate from the high school course. Why? Because you can't compel the boy or girl of high school age to absorb text books against their will and inclination.

The blind are the average of seeing people, in point of intelligence. The success which comes to them, in their cramped environments, is along lines which interest them, and so music and light handicraft appeal to them.

The most helpless blind people as a rule are the high school graduates, because in educating the mind, the education of the hand has been neglected, and a skillful hand means more to sightless eyes, than all other accomplishments.

The average boy, possessed of all his faculties, is fired with ambition to do something, before he reaches the age of sixteen, and he discovers that the hand is a most useful member.
When the school fails to interest him, through lack of hand education, he naturally turns to the shop, and if the door is barred, as it is today by law, he idles away his time on the street, and soon loses his ambition for work.
The conflict going on in this country today is due to the fact that too wide a chasm exists between the educated classes, and the great rank and file of common people.

The commercial and industrial world is captained by men who have "caught up" with their college-bred sons. The knowledge they possess has been gleaned from the school of experience and hard knocks, but it has been so intelligently applied that great enterprises have responded to the magic touch, and prosperity has blessed the people.

The executive department, both in the states and nation, is largely in the hands of men called educated, because they come from our universities and colleges. These are the men who make our laws and administer them.

Many of them are theorists, tinctured with a brand of text book political economy that is highly flavored with socialism. They have authority to regulate our industries through commissions that could hardly distinguish the difference between a printing press and a threshing machine. They attempt to equalize our finances by instructions to "go out and get the moon."

Most of the fads, and many of the so-called reforms have been foisted on the nation by men who have depended for existence on the public crib. They are supposed to be servants of the people but they lead the procession.
While there is much illiteracy in this free land, the great rank and file of the people possess a practical education, which enables them to gain on honest livelihood, and a competency, if they will. There will be less friction, when more of these hard-headed people realize the importance of representation at the seat of government, and especially in Wisconsin when the university is retired from state control.

SCRIPTURE
Psalms 37-19.
Fret not thyself because of evil-doers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity.
For they shall soon be cut down like grass, and wither as the green herb.
Trust in the Lord, and do good; so shall thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed.
Delight thyself also in the Lord; and he shall give thee the desires of thine heart.
Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also to him; and he shall bring it to pass.
And he shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light, and the judgment as the noonday.
Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him; fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass.
Cease from anger, and forsake wrath; fret not thyself in any wise to do evil.
For evildoers shall be cut off; but those that wait upon the Lord; they shall inherit the earth.

MAXIMUM SENTENCE IS GIVEN WAGGONER

Judge Fifield Refuses to Set Aside Verdict Of Jury—Defendant Goes to Jail For Six Months

Hugh Waggoner, found guilty by the jury yesterday afternoon of receiving and concealing a watch worth $5, stolen from Robert Denner, was sentenced by Judge Fifield this morning to imprisonment in the county jail for six months, the maximum sentence that can be given under the statute for an offense of that nature. Judge Fifield refused to set aside the verdict of the jury on the motion of Charles Pierce, attorney for the defendant, who protested that the verdict was not in accordance and contrary to the evidence presented in court.

Attorney Pierce was given an opportunity to present authorities and arguments in support of his contention. He maintained that the state must show that the property was stolen, that the defendant had known that the property was stolen at the time he received it, and that he must have concealed it. The state had failed to prove such knowledge on the part of the defendant or that he had attempted to conceal the stolen property. Attorney Pierce also contended that the information filed was faulty in stating that the watch was received August 21 when all the evidence showed that it was received on the morning of August 15. Furthermore, in his charge to the jury the judge had not submitted to them the question of receiving, but only that of concealing stolen property and the jury had disregarded the testimony of Mr. Olson the jeweler, in determining the value of the watch, placing it at $5, instead of at $4.

District Attorney Dunwiddie, in reply, stated that it was permissible, according to the laws of the state, to convict on the fact of concealment alone; the date was immaterial as concealment was a continuing offense. Judge Fifield acknowledged that the charge was open to criticism for omitting to submit the question of receiving stolen property, but that the omission weakened the case of the state rather than of the defense. The statutes also provide that all offenses are to be treated as one, and that an information must be made before it is submitted to a jury. He thought the evidence presented showed concealment in that Waggoner objected to Clark taking the watch into the police station for inspection. Attorney Pierce asked that his client be given a light sentence.

OLD FREIGHT HOUSE WAS MOVED FRIDAY

Building To Give Place For New Switching Tracks Of St. Paul

Road Near Hanson Co.

Work of moving the old freight depot of the St. Paul railroad near the Hanson Furniture factory, now used as a storage warehouse, was accomplished yesterday, seven hours time being required to complete the task. The position of the building was shifted to the westward of its former location in order to allow room for the new switching tracks which the St. Paul railroad company has ordered put in, and for which P. V. Ryan & Sons of this city are at present working on the grading. With the removal of the building the grading work will now be pushed forward. The upper layers of soil are being removed and it is thought the strata of gravel underneath will suffice for laying the tracks. When the work planned by the railroad company is completed, over seven thousand feet of switching tracks, nearly a mile and a half in all, will be available in addition to the present switching facilities of the company. The rapid growth of the business has made it necessary to secure there extra accommodations.

City Ordinance Forbids Tampering With Drinking Places Practiced By Children

Complaints have reached the city hall that children have fallen into the habit of tampering with the public drinking fountains, stopping the flow of water and the drainage, throwing substances of different kinds into them, and playing and splashing about in the water so as to interfere with their legitimate use. Section 7 of the revised city ordinance positively forbids such practices, and parents should call their children to its provisions which are given below.

"Section 7.—Public Fountains 1. No persons, unless thereunto duly authorized, shall place or throw into or upon any public drinking or display fountain, or into or upon the basin thereof, any substance whatsoever or in any manner interfere with the water in or flowing to or from the same.

2. No person shall mark, scratch, chip, mar, or otherwise injure or deface any such fountain, basin, coping, curbing, railing, steps or deface wall appurtenant or adjacent thereto, or sit upon the grates within the stone coping surrounding the display fountain upon the public ground known as Corn Exchange Square."

PAID HIGH TRIBUTE TO WILLAM HEMMING

Lakota Club At Meeting Last Evening Received Memorial To Recently Departed Member.

High tribute to William Hemming, who lost his life by drowning on August 18, was paid in a memorial submitted to the Lakota Club at its regular meeting last evening. The memorial was drafted by Gardner Kavelage, Harold Jones, and Emmett Roberts, and was ordered spread on the records of the club. The memorial in part is as follows:

"For the first time death has entered our midst and taken one of our members whose many young life and spirit of true comradeship have made the blow which smote him keenly felt by all. We can scarcely realize that one who was so recently active in our circle has been called hence.

We have nothing but commendation to offer for him who has passed away. His genuine friendship, his sincere purpose of life, and his conscientious conduct have engendered such a warm admiration in our hearts that his untimely death makes our grief more earnest.

Always cordial and openhearted he spontaneously attracted people and his ever genial disposition excited the love of all his associates. He made every one of us unhesitatingly his staunch friend because he was such a friend himself. Most gratifying of all his attributes was that sincere nature which unfortunately is far too uncommon.

Withal he was a young man of high ideals and true Christian character. He had a cleanliness of thought and a purity of nature that would have befitted the highest womanhood, which was the loss a consistent part of his true manliness."

The work is conducted as an undenominational movement, and the laymen back of it feel warranted in renting the auditorium for thirty days for evangelistic services. POSTPONE BUILDING BRIDGE TO SPRING

City Will Not Begin Construction of New Main Street Bridge Over Spring Brook This Fall.

Construction of a new concrete bridge over Spring Brook on South Main street, plans for which were adopted by the old Common Council, will not be started until next spring according to Mayor Paterson.

Difficulty in securing labor, and the greater urgency of other improvements is primarily responsible for the delay. It is probable that the city will not let the construction of the bridge to a contractor but build it itself. Gravel can be obtained within ten minutes haul of the bridge, and if desired cement can be unloaded from the cars at a convenient siding. The council has made repairs to the deck of the old wooden bridge and will keep it in shape through the winter. Lumber saved from the wrecking of the old Fourth Avenue bridge will probably suffice for all repairs. Some of this lumber will be used in a wall to keep the fill at the west approach of the Fourth Avenue bridge from sliding into the race-way.

Municipal Affairs Of Vital Interest

CITY GARDEN ASSOCIATION WORK IN MADISON, SUCCEEDS

A Very Successful Season Is Reported By The Madison City Garden Association.

The Garden association, which has thirty or forty members, is entirely supported by the membership subscriptions; the land on which the gardens stand was loaned by the various owners to the association, which in turn loaned it to the gardeners; the Park and Pleasure Drive association gave the labor of its men and teams for the plowing; and Congressman John M. Nelson gave a quantity of government seeds, and the Olds Seeds company sold seeds to the association at a discount. The association desired particularly to employ a paid superintendent for the entire summer, which it was assured by similar organizations was necessary for the success of the movement; but owing to the inexperience of the managers and the fear of being unable to meet the salary regularly, this supervisor was engaged by the hour. He was a student in the agricultural course at the university, and as the school of the year took him to other work, the gardens were unfortunately left to themselves.

One section of the gardens—six families on five gardens—had, however, been placed under the supervision of Miss Blanchard Harper, member of the association volunteering service, who, during the summer, lives near these gardens, and she has kept up supervision throughout the season. Another section, given to a patrol of Boy Scouts, whose leader undertook the supervision of their plot. A third section of school gardens was put under the supervision of Miss Kate Riley.

The plot supervised by Miss Harper is giving gratifying results. It is situated on land loaned by Mrs. Susan Sterling and Mrs. Mary Alwood in Mercer's addition, and is divided into six gardens—averaging 60x80 feet square. It was the gardeners' manured at the expense of the Garden association; plowed by the Park and Pleasure Drive association and then assigned among the applicants. Owing to the fact that it lies far from the crowded districts of the city, it was at first somewhat difficult to induce the people to take the plots and so the seeding was late; but once they had taken them and worked their plots faithfully, each one has asked for the same plot next year.

Heretofore, the land, ploughing, and fertilizing have been donated, but the question is open to the association as to the advisability of doing that for more than the first year for each gardener. It is thought that the first year's crop should make the beneficiary willing to bear the necessary expense of preparation for the second year; and thus permit the society to extend its work, now hampered by limited means, to additional applicants. The association desires the work to be educational rather than charitable. It is also desired that more families living in flats should subscribe and secure gardens for their use.

SINGLE TAX POPULAR IN WESTERN CANADA

The following account of the workings of the single tax in Western Canada is taken from the Royal Tax Commission of Canada, a conservative body appointed to discover the truth.

"In Kelowna the area of assessment is about 12 square miles. It has a system that is purely and simply single tax. There are no other taxes. That community owns its electric light plant, and through that municipality wherever you go among the fruit farms you will find sidewalks laid to the very doors of the farms. 'The country roads are lighted about as well as the city streets were before we had the cluster lights, and in every house they have electric lights, and all these things are furnished the people by the municipality at cost.'"

"And who are the people who live in Kelowna? They are nearly all men who have made a success of their business affairs and have gone there to live. They are not radicals or fanatics; they are plain, hard-headed business men. Whenever the question was asked, 'Do you think you will ever depart from the principles of single tax?' the answer invariably was, 'We will never depart from it.'"

TO START SOCIAL CENTERS IN SCHOOLS OF RACINE

Oscar M. Sullivan, the new officer recently added to the staff of the Central association, has arrived in Racine and started his work. Mr. Sullivan was brought there to have charge of all boys' work, with a general commission for organizing work of this kind all over the city. He will help in city work also, being the officer whose services were recently offered to the board of education by the Central association for the establishment of social center work in the public schools of Racine. He will have a wide sphere of work, the North Side club also being under his supervision, as the two assistants there will be under his charge. Mr. Sullivan has had a wide and varied experience, coming here from Philadelphia, where he has been working for the Russell Sage Foundation in the department of child helping.

FOR MUNICIPAL CONTROL OF STREET SHADE TREES

Municipal Control of The Street Shade Trees Is Advocated By A Contributor To A Monroe Paper.

"City control of street planting and beautifying is no longer an experiment but has been successfully demonstrated in many cities both east and west.

Nothing raises value of city property like beautifully planted, well kept streets and the advantage to the city itself is beyond computation. Streets are planted along sidewalks so the tree along sidewalks themselves, as well as under city control. If the curb or paving becomes unsightly or dangerous it is repaired by the city, but if trees die, need trimming, are unsuitable or entirely missing, the matter until recently has not been considered worthy the attention of city authorities. Where competent supervision has been employed results are remarkable."

FREE EMPLOYMENT BUREAU IN OSHKOSH IS ACTIVE

Conditions in the local labor market continue to be excellent according to the monthly report of Henry Schreiber, superintendent of the Oshkosh branch of the state free employment bureau. During the month of August Mr. Schreiber received a total of 384 calls for help wanted, while he had filed with him but 283 applications for employment, the applications for employment being 99 fewer than the calls for help, which would indicate that the demand for labor is greater than the supply. During the month 251 of the applicants for employment were referred to prospective positions. For the week ending August 31 there were 143 calls for help, whereas the applications for employment numbered but 62. Sixty-one were referred to positions.

EAST DUBUQUE SCHOOLS MAY NOT BE RE-OPENED

The schools of East Dubuque may remain closed for the fall and winter months unless some settlement is reached with the Illinois Central in regard to the taxes on the bridge which spans the Mississippi river at that city. The railroad wants the taxes on the bridge reduced while States Attorney Sheehan wants it to pay taxes on thirty-five additional feet of the bridge. The East Dubuque school board is without money and have asked Attorney Sheehan to arrange some settlement with the railroad company.

Contrasts in Domestic Service.

Americans who can keep only one servant, and who often cannot keep that one very long, sometimes sigh for the supposedly domestic tranquility of the old world—and yet here is a paragraph in the London Times saying that a certain marquis was summoned to a London police court for "keeping four male servants without having licenses," and fined forty shillings with costs. Life is not without its troubles even for marquis with several servants.

AWARDS TO CHILDREN

Large List of Contestants in Children's Department With Fine Showing of School Work.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, Sept. 7.—The attendance at the fair Friday, was not as large as on the last day of former years, but considering the very warm weather that has prevailed all the week, was very good.

The ball game between Albany and Stoughton, was a long drawn out game rather one sided, resulting in a score of eight to one in favor of Stoughton. The game came off from about eleven o'clock until noon when the day was just warmest and not only the ball players, but everyone else felt the effects of the heat.

The races did not come off as scheduled, owing to some dissatisfaction among the horsemen.

The Nineteen Thirteen Cadillac

We give you here a few facts about this magnificent car, which is second to none in its class, and only equaled by those of the very highest price.

1913 Cadillac Service For Owners Is Still More Competent, More Nearly Perfect.

The simplified and improved electric power plant for starting, lighting and ignition turns over the engine twice as fast and twice as long, saves weight, is even more fool proof than the 1912 model and prevents the theft of the car by providing a Yale lock on the ignition switch.

The 1913 Cadillac has 25% more power produced by a long stroke engine, 4 1/2 inch bore by 5 1/4 inch stroke. Horsepower, 40-50.

The engine has been silenced to a point beyond belief by enclosed valve mechanism and silent chain drive to auxiliary shafts.

Riding comfort has been increased by a longer wheel base, 120 inches, longer rear springs and 10-inch upholstery.

Standard equipment now includes 36-inch by 4 1/4-inch tires, demountable rims, mohair top, ventilating, rain-vision windshield, Warner Speedometer.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ONE WAY OF SAVING MONEY.

THESE are a great many ways of saving money in this world. And according to some people all methods which accomplish this end are excellent. I beg to disagree.

I know one woman who most certainly saves money, and yet I do not admire or envy her. I thought of her because she happens to be a most flagrant example of the type. Actually I know a great many people who save money in a way I don't admire, and undoubtedly you also count them among your acquaintance. The prime necessity for conducting this kind of saving successfully is to have a purse that is not easily gotten at.

One of these clever economizers happens to go in town with you. The conductor comes around for the fares and she begins to hunt for her pocketbook. She has difficulty either in finding it or opening it, and of course you have paid the conductor while she is struggling. At that her protests are as eager as her search was not. Sometimes she even backs them by trying to get you to accept a nickel, but when you refuse she gives in with a resignation which is beautiful to see.

If you go shopping with this thrifty person you cannot help observing that she has no trouble whatever in locating her purse when she wishes to make some personal purchase, but the difficulty promptly re-occurs when it is a case of getting soda checks.

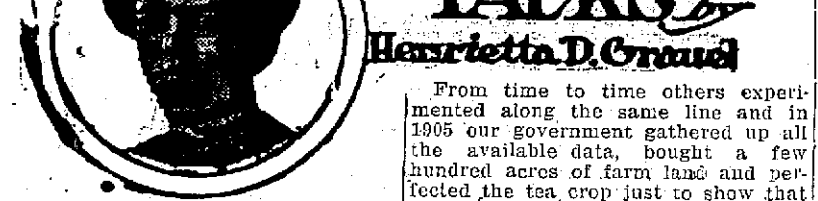

Again, this is the type of person who economizes by not having a telephone and self-sacrificingly content herself by borrowing yours. You grant her the use of it with all alacrity, remembering the time when you also did not have that necessity of life, but you cannot help wishing that she were not so economical as to omit to settle for her pay calls.

This kind of person seldom wastes a penny buying a newspaper. She thinks it is terrible to fritter away money in things like that. So, instead, she lets her companion buy the paper and offer her half of it. Or she reads over her neighbor's shoulder, or picks up the paper which someone who could not afford to buy it half so well as she, had left in the car.

If a theatre party or some other excursion is proposed, "dutch treat," this is the type of person who never offers to advance the money for the tickets. Instead she lets you advance it, and then either delays payment a few months or forgets it altogether.

I have said "she" all the time because I am more familiar with the feminine economizers, but I am sure the class is not made up entirely of females. Probably any of my masculine readers could tell me of the male economist whose tobacco pouch is always empty when it is possible to accept a smoke from someone else.

Yes, economy is a grand thing, and we couldn't get along without thrifty folks. But still less, it seems to me, could they get along without the open-handed people at whose extravagance they often gibe?

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Henrietta D. Crowl

From time to time others experimented along the same line and in 1905 our government gathered up all the available data, bought a few hundred acres of farm land and perfected the tea crop just to show that "Japan had nothing on us."

A government bulletin just issued says that farmers and others who have garden space can with slight expense and trouble grow enough tea for their home use. It is a significant fact that the tea of the Orient is grown upon waste places and in the otherwise vacant corners of the farms.

The cultivation of tea may be risked wherever the thermometer does not go below zero and where moisture is available. As Prussian blue, indigo, copperas, turmeric, soap stone, and leaves of other plants, often injurious, are used to adulterate the foreign article a great deal of pleasure will be felt when we can go into the garden the day we want tea, pick a few leaves and proceed to cure them. They are spread evenly on a clean table or floor for twenty-four hours, when they will have evaporated one-half their weight and feel soft and pliable to the touch. Now they are ready for rolling, about a half pound of the leaves are rolled at a time. The motion is much like kneading bread, a light touch at first, then, as the leaves begin to curl, a heavier one. As the moisture of the leaves exudes it is mopped up with the leaves and the rolling continued until each leaf is a tight twist. The leaves are then gathered into a ball and placed in a cool damp place to ferment for six hours, when the ball is next separated the leaves will have turned to a yellow copper color. The raw scent is now agreeable and fruity and the leaves are ready to be fired. They are placed on a porcelain tray in a moderate oven and at intervals they are turned. When they are dry and small like tea they are ready for use and should be kept in air-tight boxes or cans until needed.

Green tea is made from the same plant's leaves as the black but the process of withering is done by heat, applied with a hot water jacket, in six minutes instead of six hours and they are rolled with greater pressure.

Tea ranks first of all beverages, China stands first in its production, then Japan and then India, Java, Ceylon and Brazil all take precedence of California but we will lead as soon as Uncle Sam has solved the question of securing laborers for picking, sorting and packing.

From numerous experiments we learn that tea has a remarkable effect in diminishing the daily waste of the bodily tissue, so that by the consumption of a certain quantity of tea the health and strength of the body will be maintained in an equal degree upon a smaller quantity of food. Tea therefore saves food and at the same time enlivens the mind and soothes the body.

"Now stir the fire and close the shutters fast; And while the bubbling and loud hissing urn Throws up a steamy column, And the cups, That cheer, but not inebriate, wait on each other's turn."

Uncle Sam insinuates that while American women are waiting for home grown tea to become plentiful they might learn how to prepare tea properly for drinking.

He says: Bring freshly drawn water to the boil; pour it on the requisite amount of tea, in a previously scalded pot. Allow it to remain covered five minutes, then decant or strain into another vessel. In summer we would add set on ice until cold and serve with chilled ice and tea cakes.

The one who presides over the kitchen must learn to take scrupulous care of all utensils. The life of a kitchen utensil depends upon its care, besides much of our delicately flavored food loses its fineness if prepared in dishes that are not immaculately clean.

If one has ever tasted fish in a dish of choice preserves—that has been opened with a can opener not properly cleaned after it has been used to open fish, the need is obvious. The manner in which dishes are washed is often the test by which other household duties are performed.

All utensils subject to rust should be carefully dried before putting away. If one is to close the house for a vacation, see that the stove and iron, steel and other rustible things are carefully greased.

The ice cream freezer is often utterly ruined by allowing the salt water to stand in the pail, rusting the hoops and spoiling the hardware.

Sieves and graters are best cleaned with a small vegetable brush, shaken dry and allowed to stand near the heat until well dried.

The Dover egg beater will soon be useless if put into the water, cogs and all. The beater should be washed carefully without wetting the cogs, then dried in the heater.

Cracker crumbs used for covering of dishes when baking are better if melted butter is used than if bits of butter are dotted over the fish.

Bread crumbs are better for covering food for frying than cracker crumbs, which are more absorbent. Chop suet in a cool place, mix with flour and it will bind better in any dish used.

Coffee Jelly.—Cover a half box of gelatine with a half cup of cold water, let it stand a half an hour, then add two cups of boiling water in which a cup of sugar is dissolved; add three-fourths of a cup of coffee well strained. Stir until it begins to thicken, then turn into molds to harden.

John Compares Our Habits With Those of the Chinese

"SAW Bromwell today," remarked John at the dinner table. "He's kind of up in books you know, and he was telling me about a new one out called The Changing Chinese, or something like that. He said the Chinese were waking up and doing things. He said there had been a lot of stuff written lately on the awakening of an ancient empire and things of that sort. But I think when it comes to sleeping, the Chinese aren't doing it all."

"Maybe," replied Dolly, who didn't just know what John was talking about.

"When we come to think about it, we're all just as much bound by habit as the Chinese."

"Oh, the ideal!" exclaimed Dolly. "Think of the women's bandaged feet, and the queues!"

"Yes," responded John. "And think of the American woman's high heels and the American man's short hair."

"His short hair! What's the matter with his hair?"

"If a man went around with long hair, it would create as much comment as if a Chinaman cut off his queue. And I'm sure women's shoes—"

"But there's no sense in a queue," interrupted Dolly.

"Well, where's the sense in the collars men wear in summertime, or the hats. But let a fellow go around without a collar, or with a negligee affair, and what a howl. Why he'd probably be refused admittance to the dining room of a fashionable hotel—just because a piece of white lined three inches high wasn't slowly choking him to death or bringing on brain storms."

"Well, yes," admitted Dolly, "that's so."

"And here we are eating dinner though we both said we weren't hungry. We look upon sitting down to meals punctiliously three times a day, whether we are hungry or not, as a far more necessary duty than going to church once a week. Yet, why shouldn't we eat when we're hungry and drink when we're dry, as the song says."

"But think—" said Dolly.

"That's just what I'm doing," replied John. "And as I said, I think the Chinese have a few on us. Now why do you bore yourself to death calling on Mrs. Graham and seeing her when she calls on you? You know you don't like her."

"Oh, but," said Dolly, "she's one of the neighbors and—"

"Just trotting along in a nice little conventional rut, as the Chinese have been doing."

"Goodness!" said Dolly, rising. "I'm afraid you're going to have brain fever. When I see Mr. Bromwell I shall tell him not to talk to you any more about new books."

"You see," said John as they left the room together, "we don't any of us, Chinese or Americans, want to be waked up and made to do things differently. We don't like to change confirmed habits."

Just a short time after this caller's exit came the second man I want to tell about.

He's an attorney who handles a great deal of "big business" and there are no idle moments in his busy days. The last time I saw him—half a year ago—he seemed about "fall in" and was really worried about his health.

But now! I exclaimed over his appearance as he breezed his way up to my desk.

"What have you been doing to yourself? You don't look like the same man. Why, you're looking fit enough to tackle a lumberjack's job!"

"See those knuckles? Well, that comes from punching the bag. You ought to hear the rat-tat-tat I can keep up now."

"You see," he went on to explain, "I got to the point where I couldn't see the scenery any more. I was going down hill so fast. Every day was a headache day and I made up my mind that if I didn't call a halt of some kind I'd be a down-and-outer."

"So, when my doctor told me that the headache came from a congestion of blood in my head and that jumping on a street car twice a day wasn't enough exercise to keep my blood circulating properly, I set my

Dear Mrs. Thompson—How can I keep hair from falling out? Also please explain how to take an egg shampoo. MADELINE.

A simple egg shampoo—Wet the hair with warm water, have a couple of eggs beaten up and apply to the scalp. Rub well, until the egg is well through the hair and the scalp feels glowing and "clean." Then rinse the hair with warm (not hot) water, several times, to get all the egg out. Have the water cooler each time until it is quite cold. Wring most of the water out of the hair, then gently brush the tangles out with a CLEAN brush, beginning at the ends of the hair and working up. Dry in the open air if possible.

Before retiring at night, dip tips of your fingers in coal oil and gently massage the scalp. Do this twice a week. Shampoo the head once in two weeks—not oftener.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—There is a young lady in my town. I would like very much to get acquainted with her, but I don't know anybody who can give me an introduction to her. How can I get acquainted with her? Shall I write to her? ANXIOUS.

Manage to meet her father or brother, or find some masculine friend of hers and get acquainted with him. Men can talk to each other without an introduction. Don't write to her.

"I used to drag out of bed mornings at the last minute, swallow a little coffee, and a bite of toast and get down to the office. Lunch was a hasty bite of pie and dinner was a big heavy meal, after which I usually felt too doped to be of any good."

"Now I get up half an hour earlier, take a few whacks at the punching bag, jump into cold bath, jump out and rub myself red with a course towel, and by the time breakfast is served, I'm ready for a real meal. Then I walk a mile, before boarding a car."

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE SAVES WORRY, SAVES MONEY, SAVES THE HAIR

If you want to free your head of dandruff and stop falling hair, you must sooner or later resort to Newbro's Herpicide.

By using Herpicide first you save yourself worry, which is desirable, you save money, which is a consideration, and you save your hair, which is the most important of all.

Why not profit by the experience of Mrs. S. A. Lee, of 119 South 4th St., Richmond, Va., who writes:

"Four years' residence in India ruined my hair until it was but two inches long and very thin. I tried everything in Europe and America without benefit until I was induced to use Herpicide. My hair is now long, soft and silky and natural color, while before it was quite gray. My friends never tire of admiring my hair." Mrs. Lee's story is a typical history of hair troubles. After everything else fails Newbro's Herpicide brings relief. It would be just as effective if used first.

Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. No matter what the claims of others, Herpicide is the only genuine original dandruff germ destroyer.

Newbro's Herpicide, in 50c. and $1.00 sizes, is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Pertinent Suggestions on the care of the little ones during the hot months.

By DR. LESLIE D. SMITH, M. D., D. O.

Readers are invited to use this service by asking questions of Dr. Smith regarding specific cases. Answers will be published in these columns in the order questions are received. Personal replies will be given at no cost when stamped envelope is sent with question. Address all questions to Dr. Smith, care the Daily Gazette. Dr. Smith will not prescribe in any case, but will gladly advise the best course to pursue.

CONSTIPATION IN INFANCY.

It is very important that the mother knows something of the cause and treatment of constipation. Important, because good health is impossible when constipation exists.

Sometimes a bad case of constipation will be overlooked by the mother, or those in attendance. As long as the child's bowels are evacuated once daily it is to be sufficient. Even though a passage takes place daily, if it is dry and comes away in hard pieces or balls, or is firmly formed without moist surfaces, it is practically certain that the evacuation is not complete and the fecal matter is retained in the intestines. This may occur at any age and when the condition persists, there results in nearly every instance auto-intoxication, (self-poisoning).

There are many nursing infants, who are thriving and apparently well in every respect, except that they are constipated. If the baby is breast-fed the first step in the management of these cases is to inquire into the daily life and habits of the mother.

A factor in the cause of constipation in the infant is constipation in the mother, which if relieved by diet, or otherwise, will often relieve the child.

Nursing women who drink a great deal of tea are apt to be constipated, and their babies likewise. The mothers of nurslings who lead indolent lives, take but little outdoor exercise are usually constipated.

In most cases of constipation in breast-fed infants the mother's milk will be found to contain too little fat. This can usually be overcome by placing the mother on a proper diet and seeing to it that she gets sufficient outdoor exercise. Some writers advise in these cases to give the infant a teaspoonful of cream immediately before taking the breast to assist in correcting the constipation. Some authors even advise giving cod-liver oil, butter or olive oil to very young children. These should be given only on a physician's orders.

Constipation is somewhat more common in bottle-fed than breast-fed infants. In the bottle-fed there is usually a lack of fat and excess of casein in the food. In other cases the cause of constipation is indigestion, in still others the use of "sterilized" milk.

The application of heat to milk so frequently results in constipation in the child.

Sometimes the lack of water to drink will cause constipation. Even an infant in the first or second week needs as much as two or three tea-spoonfuls of water during the twenty-four hours.

Although the treatment is difficult, and in obstinate cases must be continued for a long time, the use of drugs should never be resorted to. To give drugs in these cases is like whipping a tired horse. Stimulates for a time but soon depletes. Enemas, suppositories and the cone of oil paper, formerly so popular, are not objectionable, but must not be relied upon exclusively.

The cause must be found and removed, if possible.

Dr. Candler gives a good fruit-laxative which may be given to children about the end of the first year.

"Take of good prunes and Smyrna figs, one pound each. Stone the prunes, add one pound of white sugar and a quart of water, stew slowly for an hour in a double covered container. Press, strain and add water to make one and a half pints." One or two teaspoonfuls at night is usually sufficient.

Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets

Are You A Tall, Slender Woman Without Curves?

If so, it is the fashionable type of form, but it is essential that you are most carefully corsetted if you do not care to be conspicuous in the fashions of the day, which have a fascination all their own; but never before was there a style that required such careful corset thought.

We realized this when we selected our corsets for this season, and largely purchased of Warner's Rust-Proof lines. It is the only line which came under our notice, where each model had a specific figure function to perform.

We have always wanted our corset opening with the cloak and suit days, but for some seasons we have not been quite sure of the corset fashions. However, this season we find that the corset fashion is established by the early introduction of WARNER'S STYLE, which is synonymous with dress fashions.

We guarantee these models not only to shape fashionably but to give a comfortable fitting.

FACE A SIGHT WITH TETTER

Began With Pimple. Spread All Over Face. In Agony All the Time. Itched and Smarted. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Was Cured.

Moberly, Mo.—"My trouble began with a small pimple on the left side of my face and it spread all over my face and to my neck. To would have scarred me when I got warm. I looked very unpleasant, and it felt uncomfortable. My face was something awful; it just kept me in agony all the time. Some said it was tetter, and some said it was eczema, but I rather think it was tetter. I had been troubled with it for about two years and tried many remedies but got no relief until I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment."

"When I would wash my face with the Cuticura Soap and apply the Cuticura Ointment it would cool my skin and draw great big drops of matter out of the skin. You would think I was sweating; it would run down my face just as though I had washed it. It itched and smarted and I suffered in the day time most from the heat from the skin. I used the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for a month and I was cured of it. I will tell everyone I know who has any trouble of the skin." (Signed) Mrs. J. Brooksher, Apr. 15, 1912.

SUGAR BEET CROP IS RAPIDLY DEVELOPING

BRIGHT, WARM DAYS, SUCH AS NOW PREVAIL, GOOD FOR RIPENING PROCESS OF SUGAR IN BEETS.

HARVEST BEGINS SOON

Indications Are That Harvesting Will Begin Latter Part of This Month—Local Factory Will Probably Open Next Month.

With climate conditions at present favorable to the development of the beets in the field, prospects are bright for a good average crop of sugar beets this year, according to W. W. Woolf of this city, agriculturist for the Rock County Sugar company. The ripening process in the development of the beets, Mr. Woolf says, requires warm days, such as now prevail in this section of the country, and with climatic conditions remaining about the same, harvesting will be commenced about the latter part of this month.

View of a growing crop of Sugar county. The field comprises fifty month. A little earlier perhaps than was possible last year.

The local beet sugar factory has about six thousand acres of the sugar beets contracted for and indications are that when the crop is harvested, the factory will be in operation, manufacturing the beet sugar for about three and a half months. It is expected the full force of from three hundred and fifty to four hundred men will be employed.

From farms in Southern Wisconsin and Northern Illinois, this year's crop will be hauled and shipped into Janesville and unloaded at the factory. The tonnage this year will probably not be as heavy as last year, but the prospects are that the tonnage of sugar will be greater. Last year's crop in this respect was disappointing, the percentage of sugar in the beets being lower than usual. This year's crop, however, promises to be much better. The reason for this, as given by Mr. Woolf, is that at the time the beets were forming the roots, the ground was moist, and the tendency was to root nearer the surface where the soil is dry, the roots penetrate deep into the sub-soil for moisture. The hot days and cool nights are favorable for the development of sugar.

The company has had about five hundred foreigners at work on farms where beets are grown for the factory, mostly Germans and Belgians. There are about seventy German families who are occupying tenant houses on the farms and working the land. Of the two nationalities the people from the Fatherland have been found to be the most desirable workmen, they tend to locate more permanently than the Belgians, who are a transient population. Quite a number of the German families that have been brought into this section have either purchased or rented farms and have become citizens of the state.

In preparation of the opening of the plant for the season's run, a force of seventy-five men have been at work all summer overhauling the plant and improvements in all departments of the factory are reported.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

WHY WHO'S WHY.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

WE rise to hang a floral wreath on the dubious brow of Thomas A. Edison, whose name will be familiar to many of our readers who buy electricity by the short watt. Mr. Edison is one of the best and most fertile inventors this country has ever produced. He formed the habit in early youth, and is now well fixed and able to take his meals out.

Mr. Edison was born in Milan, Ohio, which had been invented only a short time before and is still where he left it. He began life as a train boy, and sold unexpurgated literature and the plastic gum drop with great success. But he was not satisfied. Something within him, which has been bothering him ever since, impelled him on and led him to become a telegraph operator, when he first came in contact with the kind of electricity which creates head-end collisions.

After Mr. Edison had learned the Morse alphabet so that he could tell a dash from a semi-colon, his inventive genius began to break out faster than a fat boy with the measles.

Whenever he wanted something that nobody else had thought of, he would invent it and then cry "Eureka" after having it patented in several different languages. Most of Mr. Edison's patents are still doing business at the old stand.

Mr. Edison gets along on less sleep than any of our inventors except those who are being sued for infringement. Some days he won't do any inventing at all, to speak of, and then again Genius will seize him by his back hair and cause him to throw off a new storage battery or a self-dumping coffee mill. He sleeps with a pencil over his left ear and a tablet under the pillow, thus making it impossible for any meritorious invention to get away.

Mr. Edison gives away a great deal of money without advertising for bids and has helped many a young man to get somewhere on his own power. He rises at 4 a. m. and mingles with fuses, retorts, crucibles, spark plugs and other forms of inanimate life until midnight. He is one of the few Americans who have the cross of the Legion of Honor pinned neatly over the piano.

CHAPTER XV.

A Confession.

Of late Berny had not been sleeping well and the fear that this would react upon her looks had spurred her to the unwonted exertion of walking. The route she had chosen was one of those thoroughfares which radiate from Market Street, and though not yet slums, are far removed from the calm, wide gentility of the city's more dignified highways. With all her cleverness, she had never shaken off the tastes and instincts of the class she had come from.

Walking listlessly forward, she crossed Powell Street, and approached the entrance of that home of vaudeville, the Granada Theater. There had been a recent change of bill, and as she drew near she looked over the posters standing by the entrance on which the program for the coming week was printed in large letters. Midway down one of these, her eye was caught by a name and she paused and stood reading the words:

"JAMES DEFAU BUFORD
The Witty, Brilliant and Incomparable Monologist

In His Unrivaled Monologue
Entitled

"KLONDIKE MEMORIES."
She remembered at once that this was the actor Dominick had spoken of as having been snubbed in with them at Antelope. Dominick had evidently not expected he would come to San Francisco. He had said the man had been going to act in Sacramento. As she walked down the street she saw that she was approaching the car line which passed close to her old home. A clock in a window showed her it was nearly five. Hannah would have been home for some time, and Hazel might be expected within an hour. Without more thought she hailed an up-town car.

She found them both at home, Hazel having been allowed to leave her work an hour earlier than usual. Sitting in a small room in the back of the house, they were surrounded by the outward signs of dressmaking. Yards of material lay over the chairs, and on a small wooden table, which fitted close to her body and upon which portions of the material lay neatly smoothed out, Hannah was cutting with a large pair of shears.

It was Buford, but a Rejuvenated and Prosperous Buford.

If Berny wanted to surprise her sisters, she certainly now had the satisfaction of realizing her hopes. For a moment after she told her news they stared at her, too amazed to speak, even Hannah, who had scented difficulties, being completely unprepared—after the way of human nature—for the particular difficulty that had cropped up. It was Hazel who first spoke.

"Buy you off to leave Dominick? Give you money to go away from him, do you mean?"

"That's what I said," returned her sister with dry grimness. "She's made me two offers to leave my husband, wants me to get out and, after I've gone for a year, ask him to bring suit for desertion."

"My Lord!" murmured Hannah in a hushed voice of horror.

"How much did she offer you?" said Hazel.

The was a crucial question. Berny knew its importance and sat up, pushing back her disarranged hat.

"One hundred thousand dollars," she said calmly.

"A hundred thousand dollars!" gasped Hazel. "Why—why—Berny!" She stopped, almost trembling in the excitement of her stunned incredulity.

"A hundred thousand dollars!" Hannah echoed, each word pronounced with a slow, aghast unbelief. "Oh, it can't be that much!"

"It's that much now," said Berny, her calmness accentuated to the point of nonchalance, "and if I want I can make them double it, raise it to a quarter of a million. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars isn't so much when you've got millions in trunks. What's that to the Ryans?"

She rose abruptly from her seat, pushing it back and feeling that she had better go before she said too much.

As she rose, Hazel rose too, her face full of suspicious concern.

"It's not another woman, is it, Berny?" she almost whispered.

Berny had told so many lies that she did not bother about a few more. Moreover, she was determined not to let her sisters know about Rose Cannon—not yet, anyway.

"No," she said with short scorn, turning to pick up her feather bus.

"Of course it's not. He's not that kind of a man. He's too much of a sissy. Another woman! I'd like to tell him that."

When she reached home, she found on the hall table a note which the Chinaman told her had been left by a messenger. It was from Bill Cannon and contained but a few lines. These, of a businesslike brevity, expressed the writer's desire to see her again, and politely suggested that, if she could come to his office on any one of the three specified afternoons, between the hours of two and four, he would be deeply honored and obliged.

In his "Klondike Monologue" at the Orpheum, Buford, the actor, made a sudden and unexpected hit. The morning after his first appearance, both Dominick and Berny read in the paper eulogistic notices of the new star.

Dominick was particularly interested. He remembered Buford's state of worry while at Antelope and was glad to see that the unlucky player was, in the parlance of his own world, "making good."

Now, from what he heard, Buford's hard times should be at an end. Such a hit as he had made should give him the required impetus. Men Dominick knew, who had theatrical affiliations, told him that Buford was "made." The actor could now command a good salary on any of the vaudeville circuits in the country, and if he had it in him he might ascend the ladder toward the heights of legitimate comedy. His humorous talent was unique and brilliant. It was odd, considering his age, that it had not been discovered sooner.

Berny was very anxious to see him. Hazel and Josh had seen him on one of the first evenings and pronounced him "simply great." She extorted a promise from Dominick that, at the earliest opportunity, he would buy tickets for her, and, if he could not accompany her himself, she could go with one of her sisters.

He stopped to buy the tickets one midday on his way to lunch. He made up his mind to buy three, then Berny could either take her two sisters, or

Hazel and Josh, whose craving for the theater was an unassuageable passion. He was turning from the ticket office window when a sonorous voice at his elbow arrested him:

"Mr. Ryan," it boomed out, "do I see you at last?"

It was Buford, but a rejuvenated and prosperous Buford, the reflection of his good fortune shining from his beaming face and fashionable figure. The red rasped look had left his features and the hollows beneath his high cheek-bones were filled out.

"Glad to see you, Buford," he said, "and glad to hear you've made such a success of it."

Buford acknowledged these compliments with cool, acquiescent complacency.

"I have struck my gait," he said, nodding his head in condescending acceptance. "I have at last won my spurs. The ways of fate—or let me say Providence—are truly inscrutable. I turned my face to the North in a bitter hour, and it was in a bitter hour that I adopted the stage."

"Then you went on the stage up there? You've only been on a few years?"

"Nearly four," said the actor. He looked down at his shoe for a moment as if considering, and repeated without looking up, "It will be four next September. Trouble drove me to those far distant lands and hard luck drove me on the stage. I did never had anything to do with it till then; I hadn't a stage game about me. There'd even been a time when I had a strong prejudice against the theater and never went to one. But a man must live and—"

He stopped, his attention arrested by a hand laid softly on his sleeve. A youth of Hebraic countenance had issued from a door behind him, and, touching his arm with a hesitating, uncertain finger, began to speak in a low tone.

"Duty calls," said Buford. "I am sorry, but they want me inside. I hope later to be able to place a box at your disposal. Madame, you say, is very desirous of seeing me. Well, I'll see to it that she does so under the most favorable conditions."

He bowed impressively as though saluting Berny in person, and then, with a last dignified farewell to Dominick, turned toward the door which opened at his approach.

CHAPTER XVI.

Rose's Point of View.

The following Sunday, at ten o'clock in the morning, Dominick noiselessly descended the stairs of the flat and let himself out into the street. He would spend the morning walking, anywhere where there was quiet and a view. He would take his lunch at any little joint—country hotel, city chop-house—he happened to pass, and in the afternoon he would walk again.

He ascended the hill by one of the streets on its southern slope, violently steep, the upward leaps of its sidewalk here and there bridged by flights of steps. Every little house was disgorging its inmates, garbed in the light Sunday attire of the Californian on pleasure bent.

Dominick went up the hill in the clear, golden sunlight, and in his revolt he pushed Berny from his mind, and let Rose come in her place. His thoughts, always held from her, sprang at her, encircled her, seemed to draw her toward him as once his arms had done.

Standing on the summit of the hill, where the wall of the quarry drops down to the water front and the wharves, he relinquished himself to his dream of her.

As if called, he turned sharply and saw Rose standing a few yards away from him, looking at him with an expression of affrighted indecision.

"I wasn't sure it was you," she said. "And then when I saw it was, I was going to steal away before you saw me. But you turned suddenly as if you heard me."

"I felt you there," he answered. "I felt you there," he answered. "I walked up here this morning to have a think. I don't know where the think was going to take me when you came round that corner and stopped it. What brought you here?"

"Nothing in particular. It was such a fine morning I thought I'd just ramble about, and I came this way without thinking. My feet brought me without my knowledge."

"Sit down and talk to me," she said quietly. "No one can hear you. It's like being all alone in the world up here on the hilltop. We can sit on this stone."

There was a broken boulder behind them, close to the narrow foot-way, and she sat on it, motioning him to a flat piece of rock beside her.

"Tell me the whole thing," she said. "You and I have never talked much about your affairs. And what concerns you concerns me."

"It's just what you know," he began slowly. "Only as every day goes by it seems to get worse. I've never told you much about my marriage. I've never told anybody."

"I knew all about her when I married her. I was young, but I wasn't a green fool. Only I didn't seem to realize, I didn't guess, I didn't dream, that she was going to stay the way she was."

"Does she want to leave you?"

The question seemed to touch a nerve that startled and then stiffened him. He answered it with his head turned toward her, the eyebrows lifted, a combative note in his voice. "I don't know whether she does or not." He stopped and then said, with his face flushing, "No, I don't think she does."

"How can you leave her, then?"

"You expect too much of weak human nature," he said.

"No," she answered, "I don't. I only expect what you can do."

He turned and looked at her.

"Then I'm to live for the rest of my life with a wife I don't care for, separated from the woman I love? What is there in that to keep a man's heart alive?"

Just before retiring the other night we threw up our front window for a view of the heavenly firmament. Out of the soft silence stole a sweet voice calling "Gladstone! Gladstone!" In endearing tones. What They Both Lacked.

An old farmer went to a cattle show to exhibit a favorite cow, with which he had high hopes of winning the first prize. On learning the result, and that his cow had been placed fifth, his anger knew no bounds, and, rushing into the ring, he attacked the judges. "Why is my cow not first? What are her faults, I'd like to know?" At this point one of the judges approached him and answered: "Her faults, my good man, are somewhat akin to your own. She lacks good breeding."

Janesville Daily Gazette, Sept. 7, 1872.—An Unknown Man Fatally Injured.—We stated yesterday, on the strength of a rumor which came into our office just before sending the paper to press, that Adam Apple had been injured at the depot. Subsequent investigations showed that we the city limits, and will probably not recover. There are two wounds upon his head, one reaching across the top of his skull, down upon the forehead. The other is back of the left ear at the base of the skull and involves a fracture. There are no injuries upon his body. He was lying with his head on one of the rails and his lower extremities concealed by the weeds which grow alongside the track and was not seen by the engineer in time to prevent the accident. The pilot of the locomotive struck his head and pushed him away from the track, and he was taken into one of the cars and the train brought him back to this city. The stranger has been unconscious since the accident and it has therefore been impossible to ascertain who he is or where he came from.

The Missing Woman.—We learn, just before sending our paper to press, that Mrs. Ellis' body has been found in the race at Monterey. In prosecuting the search the gates at the bulkhead were raised and at the same time the grappling hooks caught in her dress, raising the corpse so that it was visible to those on the banks. But the force of the released waters tore the books from their insecure fastening and the body was borne into the still waters below. It has not been recovered at last accounts.
